Matthew Schwartz Bio

Matthew Schwartz reported approximately 10,000 stories on television stations nationwide for four decades. He won more than 200 awards, including four New York Emmys and four regional Edward R. Murrow Awards for investigative reporting.

Matthew's memorable stories include an interview with serial killer David Berkowitz; the trials of mobster John Gotti; reports on the 9/11 attacks from Ground Zero; and hundreds of investigations about corruption, fraud and government waste. His series on cats and dogs dying in airplane cargo holds led to a federal law making air travel safer for pets.

Confessions of An Investigative Reporter is his first book.
